SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 27, 1858.

Triumph of the Slave Power.

The great Crime of the Age—the deliberate enslavement of Free Kansas, by the Executive and Legislative Power of this so-called Republic—draws near its completion. That boasted and dignified body, the U. S. Senate, has given its final assent to the atrocious wrong, by a vote of 33 to 25. To complete this outrage, nothing is now lacking save the concurrence of the House of Representatives,—which will doubtless be yielded soon enough, notwithstanding all the hopes and predictions to the contrary.

That this issue of the admission of Kansas, under the Lecompton Constitution, is a simple question of Freedom or Slavery, is plainly evident from the vote in the Senate. With slight exceptions the Slave State Senators stand on one side—for Lecompton—and the Free State Senators on the other—against it. Barely 5 States, out of 31, gave a divided vote; viz.: California, Iowa, Kentucky, Rhode Island, and Tennessee. Of the following States, both Senators vot ed:

For Lecompton. Against Lecompton.
Alabama, Massachusetts,
Arkansas, Connecticut,
Florida, Maine,
Georgia, New Hampshire,
Louisiana, Vermont,
Maryland, New York,
Missouri, Ohio,
South Carolina, Illinois,
Virginia, Michigan,
Texas, Wisconsin.

The two Free States of New Jersey and Indiana went (each 2 Senators) for Lecompton; while the four States of Pennsylvania, Delaware, North Carolina and Mississippi gave each one vote the same way. Thred Senators were absent, viz., Bates of Del., Reed of N. C., and Davis of Miss. (the latter ill)—and Cameron of Pa., paired off with him.

Of the 32 Senators from the Free States, eight had the hardihood to vote for Lecompton and Slavery, viz.: Wright and Thompson of New Jersey; Fitch and Bright of Indiana; Bigler of Penn.; Jones of Iowa; Grinn of Illinois; and Allen of Rhode Island. These gentry will all be settled with by the People, in due time; yet the glaring wrong they have done to freedom and humanity may, in its effects, long outlast their earthly existence.

Of all the Senators from New England a single individual—Philip Allen, of Rhode Island, voted for Lecompton. The Senate of his State, of the Eastern States, and the Free North; and the first and plainer principles of republican government. What has Mr. Allen to say, in defense of his conduct?

ORGAN EXHIBITION.—The fine Organ at the Marlboro' street M. E. Church is to be completed and will this afternoon from four to six o'clock be exhibited by Mr. Wilcox whose celebrity as an Organist is known throughout the country. We shall notice it at further length after hearing and seeing.

XXVII CONGRESS.
WASHINGTON, Thursday, March 25.
HOUSE.

Mr. Stephens (Ga.) proposed the naming of an early day, for the consideration of the Senate bill for the admission of Kansas.

He thought it best to have an understanding in the matter, so that nobody shall be taken by surprise.

Mr. Campbell (Ohio) said that the House had been debating the questions involved in that bill for nine years, and nearly all this session. This Kansas question blocks up public, as well as private business.

Mr. J. Glancy Jones (Pa.) made an ineffectual effort to report a bill for the committee of ways and means, regulating the mode and manner of collecting and distributing the revenue.

The House went into committee on that deficiency appropriation bill.

Mr. Pease (Ky.) made a speech in favor of the admission of Kansas under the Lecompton constitution.

He predicted the most disastrous consequences from the defeat of the bill, and accused the Republicans of keeping open the agitation to promote their Presidential electioneering purposes.

Mr. Gove (Pa.) spoke of the injustice and oppression of the attempt to force on the people of Kansas, a constitution against which they have protested in the most solemn forms.

He was, therefore, ready to meet the question to-day or to-morrow, with or without further debate. He thought it due to the interests of the country, that the House should come to a vote, and suggested that by common consent they agree to take up the bill to-morrow.

Mr. Washburn (Ill.) and others objected on the ground that the House was unusually thin. When there was a full attendance they could have common consent fix a day.

Mr. Stephens having been asked by several members to fix a day, named Tuesday, April 6th.

Mr. Campbell suggested next Tuesday.

Mr. Stephens thought that too short a time.

Mr. Campbell said that the House agreed on the first Monday of June for a journymen; it would be impossible to get through with the public business by that time, unless the earliest possible day should be fixed for the vote on the Kansas question.

Mr. Montgomery (Pa.) had no doubt if the master was not now pressed, an arrangement might be made, which would be satisfactory to all parties.

Mr. Stephens declined his suggestion for the 1st of June, but said such an arrangement will be made; when a day was fixed he would announce it.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[From our Washington Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, CITY, Tuesday, March 23.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION OF ARTISTS, now in session here, at the Smithsonian Institute is not very numerously attended by the profession, there being only about twenty delegates in attendance from a distance. However, they are at least treating the Washington public to a series of interesting entertainments. Mr. Browne Brown, of New York, lectures to-day, and the Rev. Dr. B. Lowe, this evening—and the venerable Remond & Peale, by general request, is to repeat his lecture on Washington and his Portraits.—to-morrow evening.

AT THE SENATE SESSION last night, both the galleries and the floor were packed with Metropolitan beauty, interspersed with such beauties as were fortunate enough to become inextricably ensconced in ermine. A great many ladies and gentlemen, were obliged to return home, unable to gain admittance.

THE PROCEEDINGS of the Criminal Court here, are now suspended, for the confirmation of a Marshal and an Attorney for the District.

AN ITALIAN named G. Gajani has just delivered a course of interesting lectures here, under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institute, on Roman Antiquities, &c.

THE GEORGETOWN COLLEGE, founded in 1785, and raised by Congress to the rank of a University in 1810, now has, in all its departments, 311 students. The Medical Department was opened in May, 1851, in this city, and now has from 30 to 40 members.

A MAMMOTH PEAR from Oregon, weighing four pounds, has been received at the Patent Office here, indicating the horticultural adaptation and progress of that occidental territory.

THE GENERAL POST OFFICE BUILDING.—The old brick City Post Office building or 7th street here, has been entirely demolished, within a few days, and the materials removed from the ground, and on the site, a large force of workmen is engaged in excavating for the foundation of the east wing of the General Post Office Building.

A DISAPPOINTED OFFICE SEEKER.—A man hailing from the Bay State was sent to the work-house here the other day as a vagrant. He stated, that he had been up to the White House to see the President about taking the Mississ to England, but "the thick headed door keeper wouldn't let him in."

THE PRESIDENT'S RECEPTION last evening was very numerously attended by the members of the Eastern States, and the Free North; and the first and plainer principles of republican government. What has Mr. Allen to say, in defense of his conduct?

ORGAN EXHIBITION.—The fine Organ at the Marlboro' street M. E. Church is to be completed and will this afternoon from four to six o'clock be exhibited by Mr. Wilcox whose celebrity as an Organist is known throughout the country. We shall notice it at further length after hearing and seeing.

NEW YORK, March 25, 1858.

Mr. Editor.—The passage of the Lecompton imposition, in the U. S. Senate, though certainly no one here was surprised by it, nevertheless produced a good deal of talk and no little feeling yesterday. The miserable old Journal of Commerce, the shallow-pated Custom House organ, (the N. Y. Daily News) and the modest and veracious Herald, all justify and exult over the iniquity; so, doubtless, will the half dozen Irish papers, and that made of folly and absurdity, the Sunday press, without, probably, an exception.

But these journals do not represent quite all the integrity, intelligence, and enlightened patriotism of this capital. There is also a constituency represented by the Tribune, Evening Post, Courier, Commercial, and several of the very able religious presses, which may possibly make itself heard one of these days. There is one little point, it may be well to note, in this Lecompton endorsement by the Senate. The bill, you will observe, was carried by eight majority, which happens to be the precise number of recent Senators from the Free States!—Thus a fraudulent and oppressive constitution is deliberately fastened on the neck of Kansas, by the votes, not of Slave-drivers, but of men claiming to be Democratic freemen from the North! Is not that a pretty spectacle for the world to look at?

To be sure, the South went for Lecompton in the Senate, nearly en masse; but it requires a few northern votes to complete the national shame, and they were forthcoming. And so they will doubtless be, in the House, when the time arrives for further degradation. Some N. Y. journals, and certain Washington correspondents, are eagerly predicting the defeat of the Lecompton bill in the House, but this seems by no means certain. If the President were not on the wrong side, and had the disposal of no federal offices in his hands, it would seem almost a matter of course that the project must be defeated; but my fear is greater than my hope, as things now are.

A noted fighting character, Patrick McLaughlin, vulgarly termed "Pauken" or "Pauken," was carried to his grave to-day—having been shot in the contest with a man named Cunningham, at a house of ill repute, on Saturday last, and died on Monday. McLaughlin was an ugly, quarrelsome fellow, and persisted in assaulting Cunningham without any but a drunkard's cause, till C. at last threatened to shoot him if he did not desist—and finally did so.

The coroner's jury, however, did not think the case one of justifiable homicide, and the two others, two may be put down as for Lecompton with one against, thus making the grand majority for the bill in full Senate, 11.
